Gelert have been awarded first prize for their innovative and exclusive 'Sleeping Pod' at the Camping Magazine Awards 2010. The Sleeping Pod secured first place in the Sleeping category, receiving very high praise from the judging panel, which comprised of leading camping journalists and readers.

The Sleeping Pod's innovative design allows for a more comfortable sleeping experience compared to most traditional sleeping bags which generally lack freedom of movement. The Sleeping Pod was judged on its innovation and originality, excellence of design and styling as well as value for money, quality of materials, build and specification. According to Camping magazine editor Clive Garrett, "The judges love the fact that the Sleeping Pod's unique oval shape allows you to curl up and move around until you can find the perfect comfortable position – just like in your bed at home."

The Sleeping Pod offers a new take on the traditional style sleeping bag and if you are looking for comfort and adaptability then look no further. The Pod is great for people who don't like the feeling of being 'zipped up' and there is plenty of room to change position without undoing the zip. Whether you're camping in the great outdoors or the kids are having a sleepover, the Sleeping Pod offers maximum versatility and is great fun for everyone. The Sleeping Pod is available in three sizes including a junior version and comes in an array of colourful designs.
